

During a visit to a school in Baghdad, Sayyid Al-Hakeem: to focus on creating integration between students, teachers, schools, family & curriculum

Sayyid Ammar Al-Hakeem, head of the National State Powers Alliance, visited the school of the martyr Sayyid Muhammad Baqir Al-Hakeem in Baghdad this morning November 1, 2021, and stressed during his speech the importance of focusing on the human personality of the student before delivering the curriculum, and the need to create a complimentary situation between five important pillars and they are the student, the teacher, the school, the curriculum, and the family. This will contribute to obtaining a better opportunity for a different educational reality and generations to assume their responsibilities more in the future.

His Eminence pointed out that it's imperative to focus on school buildings and supply its needs, take care of the faculty and their financial and moral needs, while H.E. illustrated the importance of focusing on curriculums that seeks assimilation and comprehension rather than memorizing, and held families responsible for their contribution to supporting the educational reality in Iraq through integration between them and the school.

Sayyid Al-Hakeem expressed his optimism for this new academic year as it is associated with the Prophet's birthday, which has important connotations, and wished that it would be a blessed year for all Iraqis with the blessings of the Messenger of Allah (may Allah blessings and peace be upon him and his family). H.E. called all students to get However, serious the challenges and the problems are great, the students of Iraq represent hope for the present and the future.
